

Long, Long Tunnel

There's a light at the end of this long, long tunnel
That will shine for us someday.
Though the road is dark, soon the golden sun'll
Shine its beams to light our way.

Sad and lonely now our weary footsteps
And we chafe at long delay
But I know at the end of this long, long tunnel
That the light will come to stay.

Though the road ahead seems to have no ending
And the days stretch on and on
We must keep our feet every turn or bending
Till will see a new day dawn.
We must marshal strength for the long, long journey
We must keep on keeping on
Though the road ahead seems to have no ending
Soon these bad times will be gone.

We have loved ones now in the path of danger
And our hearts are filled with care
We must trust in the kindness of friend and stranger
Whose companionship they share.
We will see the day when we're all united
With good health and joy to spare
We have loved ones now in the path of danger
May they be victorious there.
